The mist of knowledge can be illumined through Infinity. Certainly we must strive to all that can lead our consciousness beyond the boundaries of our planet. Only thus can the true values be understood. He who can understand synthesis will understand Hierarchy. Hierarchy 152

SEASON'S GREETINGS— DECEMBER 2009

A Note of Continuing Gratitude

Dear Friends

We recently received gifts from many of you, some, in response to our appeal for financial support, were donations to help us with our expenses. Many others were gifts of love, goodwill, encouragement, light and insight. All such gifts of the heart aid us in our efforts to see the Way ahead in this co-service venture. Arcana Workshops is a venture in which we, you and us, are all deeply engaged and which, by the way, pays enormous and amazing dividends in mysterious ways. Let me explain a bit:

We receive many gifts in many, many guises and from many, many sources: friends, co-workers, the Great Ones, our gardens, our beaches, the sunsets and sunrises, the smile of a small child in the supermarket that makes our hearts skip a beat and floods us with joy, the touch on the arm of a wife or husband. The kinds and guises are too many to document, and they constantly come in from the many paths in the physical and supermundane worlds. All we need be is open, to be sensitive to them.

The gifts of money and kindness that you have all shared with us in this season of giving are an especially sweet part of this omnipresent gift wave. Your gifts were given, we are certain, with intention, with will and love, and they were received with great gratitude. I wonder if you realized that when you were giving us the gift of a donation, or sending us your encouraging comments, you were simultaneously giving us all an even greater gift, the opportunity to feel and express gratitude.

This feeling of gratitude and the effortless way it pours out of us is one of those enormous, amazing and mysterious dividends of a life of service. Gratitude is like a double dividend because it spreads light and joy to both the giver and the receiver. I noticed recently, that the best thing, by very far, about receiving gifts of support for our work is this quality of gratitude which floods out when I open an envelope, or when Mary hands me a note from one of you.

So, in this little note, I wanted not only to express our gratitude for the gifts but also for the opportunity to feel this wonderful sense of gratitude which your many, many gifts in many, many guises have engendered within our worlds.

Loving us

The Next Three Years

Over the past eighteen years we have been sustaining a series of three-year focused meditations. We began with a series focused on the conscious construction of the group antahkarana. We then established a conscious working relationship via the antahkarana with the Ashram of Synthesis.

Next, we focused on opening the heart center of the United States. We called the service activity connected with this series of meditation work The Los Angeles Heart Project. We did group meditations in various significant locations in the city of Los Angeles which is the heart center of the United States. Using a simple alignment and a direct invocation to the Heart of the World, the Christ, we brought heart energy into the city.

Love Wisdom

Our next three-year focus was devoted to registering and invoking the qualities of the Second Ray energy of Love Wisdom. While continuing our monthly adventures into the city of Angeles to hold invocative meditations, we used a series of seed thoughts which opened the group to this Divine Quality. Due to the presence in our system of the Avatar of Synthesis and the use of the synthesis energy in our meditation work, it is of the utmost importance that the qualities of the Second Ray permeate all aspects of our work.

We have spent the past three years focused on the energy we call synthesis. In the final year of this focus, a very subtle and somewhat gradual shift in the emphasis of the meditation occurred. It seems that having gained some stability in the alignment, the inbreathing side of the arc of our invocative/evocative meditation process, the group effort became more and more oriented toward the out-breathing or distributing side of the meditation.

At first I thought that this was occurring because we had developed the requisite skill and stability to actually invoke and hold and distribute within the safety of the group chalice energies from Purpose or Monadic levels of consciousness. However, as we have continued to work with this alignment, I have come to realize that this is occurring because the group is being invoked by the intelligentsia and the general expansion of consciousness among the people.

This is a normal unfoldment of the Science of Invocation and Evocation. Meditation is a process that makes it possible for adequately trained and stabilized groups to participate in ever-expanding ways in the cycle of the Breath. Like all true meditation, our meditation work is two-sided. We invoke so that we can be evoked. And, as are all meditating groups the world around, we are being directly invoked by the planetary intelligentsia.

A Soul Response

We are all well aware of the inchoate cry of humanity for relief from the dreadful aspects of the Great Lie of Separation: war, starvation, homelessness and terror. For thousands of years, this cry has been flowing non-stop from the poor, the powerless, from those "huddled masses yearning to be free." It has created in the psychic fields wherein we work an indelible footprint. A Soul response to this cry is the impulse which has over the millenniums brought us again and again into incarnation. Only the stone hearts of the retrogressive forces cannot hear this mournful cry.

The New Invocative Frequency

However, there is of late a new invocative frequency in the field. This powerful invocative impulse is coming from those who are gradually awakening to the reality of the sad condition of humanity, to the bondage in which the materialistic paradigm has been and is holding us all. The awakening ones are becoming conscious of the inchoate cry of the masses and are identifying with them as human beings very much like themselves.

The pain of those who are disenfranchised from the basics of a decent life or even a full belly, is being registered in the expanding consciousness of the more fortunate members of humanity. It is these people who, by and large, make up what we call the middle class and to a large extent the planetary intelligentsia. Indeed, in the rapidly expanding general meltdown of the world's economic and social systems, which, by the way, is a subjective parallel of the dense physical phenomena we are calling Global Warming, more and more members of the "middle class" and the intelligentsia are being swept into situations where the comforts and securities to which they have become accustomed are evaporating.

This rapid, shocking, and extreme diminishment of comfort sharpens their ability to register the reality which exists beyond the blinding illusions of exclusivity and superiority. In addition, these conditions being faced now by more and more of the previously secure are revealing the empty superficiality of a life based in the acquisition and ownership of property and material comfort. Thus the previous exclusive and comparatively secure are suffering too, and for them, the situation is conceivably more painful than the suffering of the poor because these previous members of the "haves" have so little experience with lack and the terror of not knowing where the next meal or house payment is coming from. These sufferings, along with the shame of having to ask for help and becoming dependent on government programs like Food Stamps and the charity, or kindness of others, food banks, homeless shelters, and so forth, are acting as goads which are hastening the expansion of consciousness.

Rapid, shocking, and extreme diminishment of comfort sharpens the ability to register the reality which exists beyond the blinding illusions of exclusivity and superiority.

This growing awareness on the part of large numbers of humanity is causing a demand for solutions to the problems which they are encountering. This unfolding ability to see beyond the illusions of materiality is helping to generate a realization that the old methods of organizing human institutions are actually the source of the problems. These institutions cannot, therefore, be modified to solve the problems they are generating. They must be reformed.

Thus the awakening ones are demanding new Principles upon which to build the new civilizations and world cultures. These new Principles are what we refer to as Essential Divinity, Goodwill, and Unanimity. They are also demanding new guidelines for the construction of the new civilizations and world cultures. This guidance is implicit in the new Laws which we call Right Human Relations, Group Endeavor, and Spiritual Approach. These Principles and Laws will provide new tools and methodologies, unique to the marvelous diversity of each of Humanity's cultural manifestations, but grounded in the same basic Truth for all.

Thus we have the presence of this new and powerful invocative demand in the field. I think that it is the presence of this new frequency that has been gradually generating the shift in focus of our meditation work from the alignment contact cycle to the service embodiment cycle. So, the guidance of our meditation work over the past eighteen or so years begins to make sense. We have been building the system that will enable us to respond not just to the cry of the poor and huddled masses, but to the demand of the planetary intelligentsia.

Initially we worked for 9 or more years on building the group antahkarana and establishing the alignment with the Ashram. Next we spent three years on opening and preparing the heart center. We then spent three years invoking and embodying the energy of Divine Love Wisdom. In these last three years we have been working on invoking and embodying, to the degree we are able, the energy of synthesis.

Putting it All Together

It seems clear that the shift in the meditation work from the inbreathing/alignments side to the service delivery or distribution side is both timely and sensible. In pondering and seeking guidance on the next step, it has become clear that in this upcoming cycle, we must "put it all together."

Another way to say this is that the time has come for us to consciously synthesize these elements of the Supreme Science of Contact. In this we must realize that we are using the energy of synthesis which in this case involves a synthesis of the First, Second, and Seventh Rays rather than a focus on one or the other of these rays. Exactly what this means and how it works is, for us, very much a matter of meditation, experiment, experience, and expression. One aspect of this new way of working which seems to be pretty clear initially, at least, is that we are being urged to use a much more proactive approach to the situations and conditions with which we find ourselves confronted.

We must also hold in the forefront of our consciousness the fact that we are working on several dimensions simultaneously. We have arrived at a point of consciousness, of understanding, that those situations and conditions which we confront within ourselves are only reflections of those conditions and situations which are occurring in the larger community we call Humanity. Consequently, we are never working on ourselves. We are always working on Humanity.

This is a rather esoteric but essential point of view for the safety of the worker and the work. The instant we lose this focus we open the door for the glamour and illusions of the separative self to sneak into the pattern. Thus it is not idle chatter when Master M. talks about the need for vigilance:

We insist upon vigilance and caution, qualities that belong to an enlightened consciousness. For the unwise it is not easy to discern the boundary between different feelings. They will see caution as suspiciousness, and vigilance as fearfulness, thus lowering the best qualities to a shameful level. But the wise will understand where caution is needed, based upon clear insight.

In a world that is torn by confusion the careless one is a fool. The sensible one will weigh all causes to determine the true source of harm. He will do this not out of fear, but with courageous resolve. He will not overlook the viper at his threshold, knowing that the seed of evil yields poisonous fruit. He will not think it unnecessary to pay attention to a small scorpion, for even out of the smallest can spring the deadliest sting....

Fortunately, vigilance can be developed without limit, and one should not hesitate to repeat that at times of highest tension, the highest degree of vigilance must be manifested.

It is not fear that compels one to such an affirmation, but a desire to serve in the best possible way. Heroes are born out of this desire. We have *spoken about the qualities of the hero, who fortunately can exist in all walks of life. Supermundane III #513

Because of the capacity in which all disciples serve—as the ajna center of the Lord of the world—our function, as “carriers of the energy which makes the Plan possible” The Rays and Initiations P. 368, we still must primarily confine our particular activity to working with energy and subjective forces. And this means that, as I mentioned above, we need to work with the synthesis of the Three Rays of the Ashram, the First, Second, and Seventh.

As we know, the Second Ray qualifies all aspects of the work, totally and completely. Its presence makes possible the Pure Reasoning Will of the Father, the first aspect to be implemented as it is intended through the office of the Lord of the Seventh Ray. It is the working synthesis of these three Powers that is bringing in the Satya Yuga, the “Life that is a loving synthesis in action.”

The Rays and Initiations P. 300

With these points in mind, we face now what is perhaps the most challenging and wonderful opportunity that we have seen in many, many thousands of years, perhaps ever. No one who is involved in this effort is here by mistake. All who are working at this time are working heart and soul. Our total commitment to the Common Good and the General Welfare is necessary, nothing less will suffice.

Here this evening at our sacred junction with the Inner Community of our Elder Brothers, we renew our ancient pledge to lead. This is the function of Lanoo, of our tried and tested and triumphant selves. The single pointed arrow of our will to implement the Father's Will is what makes us leaders, way-showers.

All who are working at this time are working heart and soul. Our total commitment to the Common Good and the General Welfare is necessary, nothing less will suffice.

We are determined now to bring no less than the whole of Humanity up that long trail which we have trod and which leads from the darkness to the Light, from bondage to freedom, even from death to immortality.

This may sound somewhat daunting, but then who would want to climb a mountain that was not daunting? This is what we are here for. This is what we were dragged up the path into the Light and painstakingly trained by our Elder Brothers over many incarnations to do. Let us recall this vital purpose as we end and begin each cycle.

And let us recall daily that "the right of leadership belongs to a spirit linked with the Forces of Light." Fiery World III #51
